TULIP TUTORIAL

Let's begin by creating a sketch of our composition using 6B or Peppermint Brush. Lower the opacity of this layer and then lock it.

On another layer, add the Freya Oil Canvas No. 10 in a light grey color. You can adjust the intensity of details by tweaking the layer curve. Go to Adjustments > Curves. When you're satisfied, lock the layer so that you don't accidentally draw on it.

I used Freya Oil Stamp No. 26 to create a backdrop for my vase. This will help us ground our color choices so that it'll all look harmonious. Blend the edges out using Freya Oil Blender No. 8.

Then on another layer, add the base colors for the vase using Freya Oil Wet No. 12. Layer in different shades to recreate that glossy glass look.

Now let's color in the leaves using Freya Oil Wet No. 5 in an up and down motion. Use varying shades of green to build depth. You can also add swirling strokes as a backdrop to the petals.

For this step, start coloring the tulip petals using Freya Oil Wet No. 4. Use different shades to add highlight, shadows, and midtones. With petal layers, remember that it's a little darker in areas that touch or overlap other petals.

Add the final touches using Freya Oil Tip No. 2 and Freya Oil Dry No. 7. A cool trick to making illustrations more realistic is adding light reflects colors of nearby items. In our example, the vase, some stems, and one side of a leaf reflects the yellow tulip.

anw_artanddesign I've been feeling pretty stressed so I decided to color a page and play with my @freya.arts oil paint brushes. I loooooove the result! The texture, the blending, all of it!

maridcedpa I prefer freya Oil dry!! ⚡💜 I think is the best texture, because it matches a lot with the real human skin texture, and it looks beautifully than the other
